U.S. Embassy Hosts First College Fair

On Monday, October 25, 2010 at 11:00 a.m. the EducationUSA Advising center at the U.S. Embassy will hold its first College Fair. The event will be held at the School of the Nations, New Market Street. Admission is free.

Representatives from U.S. universities and colleges will talk about opportunities for pursuing higher education in the United States as well as providing students with information on the breadth of online programs available. The fair will also feature universities from Canada and the Caribbean and the University of Guyana.

Local financial institutions have been invited to promote their educational financing information and the Guyana Telephone and Telegraph Company will promote its services to help those students who would wish to pursue online study.

EducationUSA centers actively promote U.S. higher education around the world by offering accurate, unbiased, comprehensive and timely information about educational institutions in the United States and guidance to qualified individuals on how best to access those opportunities. EducationUSA centers also support U.S. study abroad by advising U.S. colleges and universities about options for developing study programs in other countries.
